Appreciated Securities

A Tax-Wise Giving Opportunity

Giving appreciated securities directly to Johns Hopkins offers an appealing mix of tax benefits and direct support for Johns Hopkins. With your gift of appreciated securities, you may receive an immediate income tax deduction and avoid capital gains tax.
What are the advantages of making a gift of appreciated securities?
When you make a gift of appreciated securities to Johns Hopkins, you may claim a charitable income tax deduction for the full value of the gift on the date the gift is completed. In addition, by giving appreciated securities directly to Johns Hopkins, you will avoid paying the capital gains taxes that would result if you were to sell the securities first.

Should I sell my appreciated securities first and then give the proceeds to Johns Hopkins?
No. Do not sell your securities first. The IRS will impose capital gains tax on your sale, significantly reducing the benefits to you and value of your gift.

Can appreciated securities be used to fund a gift that will pay me and/or a loved one income for life?
A gift of securities can be used to fund a life income gift, such as a charitable gift annuity or charitable remainder unitrust that will support Johns Hopkins’ future needs and pay you and/or a loved one income for life. Whether funding a life income gift or an outright gift, consult with your tax advisor regarding the availability of a charitable income tax deduction.

Example
The chart below shows the different outcomes for a donor making a gift of $100,000 worth of appreciated securities. In Option 1, the donor sells the stock and gives the proceeds to Johns Hopkins. In Option 2, the donor gives the stock directly to Johns Hopkins.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>Option 1: Donor sells appreciated securities and gives net proceeds to Johns Hopkins</th>
<th>Option 2: Donor gives appreciated securities directly to Johns Hopkins</th>
</tr>
